

“I’VE GOT ALL MY BAD

GUYS IN ONE PLACE” p40

“There’s a reason you see people in yoga pants all over New York City—not because they’re working out”

p25

“The idea of working next to some tech guy doesn’t do anything for me”

p59

“You have to do lots of unnatural things to make sure transactions take place on the platform. You have to juice it”

p46

Date received : 25/8/2016

Publisher : Transforma

Cover Trail

How the cover gets made

Opening Remarks China's heavy hand in Hong Kong sparks an independence movement 10

Bloomberg View Stimulus is no longer a dirty word • Immigration reform can't wait 12

Movers ▲ Univision buys the bankrupt Gawker Media ▼ French beaches ban the burkini 15

Global Economics

Erdogan is probably coup-proof 16

Tensions with most of its neighbors are rising, but China has an ally in Singapore 17

With government spending slashed, Saudi companies aren't paying foreign workers—or even sending them home 18

Brexit: Very little guidance for what promises to be a very messy divorce 20

Companies/Industries

Robo-Uber gets ready to ride in Pittsburgh 22

At Aldi, where thrift is a religion, a free-spending heiress causes a row 24

The CrossFit generation's idea of a wild night: Spiked sparkling seltzer 25

Politics/Policy

Will a new captain right Trump's ship? 26

UnitedHealth, Aetna, and Humana give the insurance market an Obamacare 27

Utility customers are paying for nuclear power they may never get 29

Technology

StockX found sneakerhead heaven. Can it resell Ferraris? 30

With the digital Latch, you finally have a doorman—and your landlord has a spy 31

Turns out you probably can't patent that amazing abstract business concept 32

Apple's iPhone must be feeling Blu 33

Innovation: Outset Medical's DIY dialysis 34

Markets/Finance

How some top Silicon Valley dealmakers win M&A and enemies 36

The Big Short gets a sequel: The Small Fee 37

For overseas investors, U.S. Treasuries yield their yield advantage 38

Northwestern's endowment is pumped up on one extremely lucrative drug 39

Features

Crime Magnet Why police officers spend their entire shifts at Walmart 40

Disruption Lending Club promised to shake up the online-loan market. Did it ever 46

Pray for Permits What it's taking to build a mosque in New Hampshire 52

Etc.

Co-working spaces ditch the one-desk-fits-all approach for rock climbing and cocktails 59

Innovation: Now that you can rent everything from chickens to falcons, the sharing economy has run wild 62

Weddings: What the hell does "festive" attire mean? 64

Drinks: The bittersweet Garibaldi has only two ingredients, confirming that less is more 65

The Critic: A history of Argentina, from Maradona to Messi 66

What I Wear to Work: Designer Andrea Wagner isn't one of those "black-turtleneck people." Just look at her hair 67

How Did I Get Here? Mark Burnett, producer of The Apprentice and a new Ben-Hur, started out jumping from planes 68

"The cover story is on Walmart. It's seen crime spike since it cut back on store employees, and the responsibility for security has been transferred to local police."

"So taxpayers are basically paying for safety at Walmart? But people are still getting hurt, because no one is trying to prevent crimes from happening in the first place?"

"That's one way of looking at it."

"This will make me think twice before going to buy my next 50-pack of toilet paper."

