

2 | Conversation
4 | For the Record

The Brief

News from the U.S. and around the world

5 | FBI Director James Comey's possible motives for "emailgate"

7 | What's next for Lebanon's first President in over two years

8 | South Korea's President under fire

10 | Ireland's abortion-rights debate

12 | Alleged ISIS fighters outside Mosul, Iraq

14 | A timeline of the Dakota Access pipeline protest

The View

Ideas, opinion, innovations

15 | All about the data whizzes at news outlets who call presidential elections

16 | How some joke inventions inspired real inventions

17 | Dive into an open-top submarine

18 | American Voices: online yogi Jessamyn Stanley

19 | Joe Klein endorses Hillary Clinton

The Features

Home Sweet Home?

Two years after fleeing their war-torn home, the first Syrian refugees in Iowa are building a new life in the heartland
By Robin Shulman 20

Elections to Watch

A guide to the U.S. races that will decide control of the House and Senate, plus notable ballot measures across the nation, including California's fight over legalizing marijuana
By Alex Altman, Katy Steinmetz 28

□ Battle of the Sexes

How Donald Trump turned 2016 into a referendum on gender, leaving many Republican women caught in the middle
By Charlotte Alter 32

Time Off

What to watch, read, see and do

39 | Loving: a film about the couple who fought for legal interracial marriage

41 | Battle of the bands' docs: Supersonic about Oasis vs. Gimme Danger about Iggy Pop and the Stooges

42 | Two new books from Elena Ferrante

45 | The real women behind Amazon's Good Girls Revolt

47 | Joel Stein thinks California votes too much

48 | 9 Questions for author J.D. Vance

▲ Hala Tameem, 6, during music class at a school in Des Moines. She and her family of seven are the first Syrian refugees in Iowa

Photograph by Danny Wilcox Frazier for TIME

ON THE COVER: TIME photo-illustration; photographs: Getty Images (5)