

“I don’t think Europe
should be defined by the U.S.
administration.”

“We have so much
going for us”

“We had a
0.4 percent
chance to win,
99.6 percent
chance to lose”

p54

“People spend
most of their day trying to come up and most of the evening trying to come down”

p28

“At some point, the government is going to
say to the airlines:
‘You need to buy these airplanes’”

p25

Opening Remarks The siren song of the strongman threatens democracy worldwide	8
Bloomberg View America's growing nuclear waste problem • The Kushners in China	10
Movers ▲ Coach bags Kate Spade ▼ A slumping ESPN brings down Disney's cable sales	13
Global Economics
As Venezuela implodes, its young professionals flee for a chance in the U.S.	15
Cyprus's passport to growth: Selling EU citizenship	17
The U.K.'s industrial heartland voted overwhelmingly to leave the EU. Now it may ditch the Labour Party as well	18
Can China turn the tropical island of Hainan into a resort destination for medical tourists?	20
Companies/Industries
Cruise lines may have the answer to Cuba's travel industry woes	23
An April frost casts a chill over Bordeaux vintners	24
China's commercial aircraft industry gets a lift from foreign suppliers	25
Interview: Coke's new CEO, James Quincey, on how to sweeten profits in a sugar-averse world	28
Politics/Policy
Searching for clues in the firing of James Comey	30
As states and doctors crack down on prescription painkillers, cartels make a killing on heroin	32
With French legislative elections coming next month, Macron's campaigning is far from over	33
Hidden Hand: Trump will lean on Shahira Knight to push his tax plan	34
Technology
A very sharp eye in the sky that won't cost an arm and a leg to use	37
Looking for a job at a Silicon Valley startup? You might want to leave "whistle-blower" off your résumé	38
Singapore's ArtScience Museum makes visitors part of the creative experience	39
Carmakers are having a hard time selling tech talent on Detroit	40
Innovation: A smart home camera that can recognize who belongs—and who doesn't	41
Markets/Personal Finance
Tax breaks may not be the best way to encourage retirement savings	43
Making money more internationally mobile using mobile phones	44
Indexes now outnumber U.S. stocks, thanks in part to the boom in ETFs	46
Focus On/MBA
A Trump Slump at U.S. B-schools, as foreign students head elsewhere	49
Entrepreneurial skills aren't always what employers are looking for	50
Prices for B-school naming rights are going up even faster than tuition	51
The Wharton School makes its public policy modeling tool available to the public	52
Features
Debrief: Robert Kraft On buying the Patriots, drafting Tom Brady, and being pals with Trump	54
Murder in Olathe The shooting of two Indian-born engineers reverberates beyond Kansas	60
On Guard Margrethe Vestager isn't afraid to throw the EU rule book at U.S. giants	68
Etc.
Summer Travel Issue: Getaways to get your life back on track	81
Where to go to chill out, shed some pounds, sleep, and more	82
Fashion: Take a dip in this season's smartest swimsuits	85
Survey: Business travelers' big annoyances—and new toys to make flying more tolerable	89
How Did I Get Here? Dara Khosrowshahi's long trip from Iranian refugee to Expedia CEO	92

1
 "The cover story is about the murder of an Indian-born engineer in Olathe, Kansas, which has become a thriving tech hub that epitomizes the increasingly fragile balance between immigration policy, economic development, and technology amid rising nativist rhetoric."

