

MULTIPURPOSE CHAT ROOM FOR STUDENT

Prepared by: Lim Jaw Fuen

ABSTRACT

Nowadays, there are many online chat applications on the Internet, which allow the internet user to chat or communicate with other internet users. Each of these applications has different features but most of them are not suitable for the student to conduct the online discussion. This project looks into the various products on the inter to analyze their features and study the techniques of developing a special multipurpose chat room. Based on the result of the analysis, a new online multipurpose chat application would be designed and developed. The multipurpose chat room will allow the student (especially the college students who will need a lot of discussion to accomplish their research or project) to conduct an online discussion on the Internet. The features that will be included in the application are chat room, email and online whiteboard services. The students can use this application to discuss homework or conduct online project discussion with other students who may live in different location.