

WEB-BASED CINEMA TICKET RESERVATION

Prepared by: Hung Hui Lan

ABSTRACT

---

Client server computing has brought about a whole new standard of corporate computing productivity with intensive graphical interfaces through Internet have make it more valuable and a highly interactive business applications. There are two main elements in this special study project. One is to research client server technology and another is to develop an application. The main interest in this project is to research into the aspect of client server computing, database application, web-based client server application and security involvement in depth and to deliver it in a form of application functionality through web-based cinema ticket reservation using the client server environment and web technology.