

Design of Screening Machine

Prepared by: Tham Weng Kit

ABSTRACT

This report is mainly consists of the design of the end product (screening machine model), and the analysis that have been done during designing the necessities. Besides, there will be visual display on the product and design construction plus a thorough guide to the completion of the started project. Materials selection and assembly process will be stated in details to show the strength of the machine. In addition, the construction and operation of the model will be discussed in the report. The report will also cover the results of the analysis while being a guideline to understanding the whole nature of this project.
