

DESIGN OF WAREHOUSE

Prepared by: Chan Chee Yong

ABSTRACT

Upon the completion of the project, students are able to do design, research and analysis which based on the knowledge that they gained so far. During the process of the project, students have to plan, schedule, proceed work and etc, all decisions are made by themselves. It helps students to more understand to the nature of Engineering Design Concept and the important of interpersonal skills.

This project report is concern with the aspects of the project that entitled 'Design of Warehouse'. This project report consists of the entire spectrum of design process.

This report has been complied in such a way that the layout of the buildings and the process of design. the architectural design, which involves the setting from exterior appearance of the warehouse to the determination of the interior design.

Besides that, the structural design is also included in this report which would give guideline through the structural design process with detailed explanation of the procedures and the methods. The design procedures will include from the roof design to footing design.