ABSTRACT

By the following pages, we shall see the list of illustrations that contain a diagram of my machine design, let's see how the machine looks like, after that, continue with the busy of my whole report. Firstly, an introduction to define the purpose that I design my machine and its function, then construction to show the every progress steps by step. Next will be the results and analysis, I had done some experiment to ensure that my machine is functioning efficiently. After every experiment was done, I did analysis as well for troubleshooting, and then only I can finalize my machine. At last, I do summary the project's entire major outcome and the progress from week one to week twelve in my conclusion. There is list of references that contain tables to show some important conclusion. There is list of references that contain tables to show some important information. Besides there are appendix to show information of the components I used.
