

Inti College a hive of activities

INTI College "jump started" their new semester this first year in the new millennium with a flurry of activities by students, all of which were for a noble cause.

The track to charity and good deeds was first made by the Social Board which organised the first orientation night of the new year themed "Nature".

The theme was very apt as the organisers donated the proceeds from Orientation Nite to Zoo Negara Malaysia and the World Wild Fund for Nature (WWF).

All in all, the sole night of songs and band presentations managed to garner RM1,000 which were later presented in a cheque to Zoo Negara public relations manager, Peter Yeo and WWF fund raising executive, Melinda Yau.

Another notable effort to contribute to the community was made by the college's Leo Club which organised a blood donation drive in response to a call for help from Hospital Kuala Lumpur.

Simultaneously, an anti-smoking exhibition was held to create awareness among students about the dangers of smoking. An AIDS exhibition was also held.

The drive which was held at the Inti College multi-purpose hall, drew so many donors from Inti College that the club decided to extend the campaign to four days.

By the end of the drive, 320 people had donated blood.

According to Inti Leo Club president, Celestina Lee, it was the fourth time such a campaign was organised and many of those who donated blood were 'regulars'.
